ANOTHER BATTLE IMMINENT.

Advance Guard of the Japanese Army Encamped on the Yalu River.

Report That the Victorious Japs Have Succeeded in Capturing Chee Foo.

London, Oct. 9.—The Star prints a dispatch from Yokohama saying that an advance guard of the Japanese army is encamped to the north of the Yalu river. The dispatch also says a battle is imminent.

A Yokohama dispatch to the Westminster Gazette says it is reported there that the Japanese have captured Cheefoo. A Hong Kong dispatch says the Foo Chow river has been closed to shipping. The British warship Undaunted has been ordered to Nagasaki and the gunboat Firebrand to New Chang.

A St. Petersburg dispatch to the Manchester Guardian says: "Russia sent a note to Japan in September claiming interest in future from the government of Corea. Japan's reply it is asserted was unfriendly to Russia's proposals.

Rusia's position in Eastern Siberia does not render the territory safe in a conflict with Japan, but large reinforcements of troops are proceeding to the military stations on the Amoor and other rivers.

A Chemulpo dispatch to the St. James' Gazette dated October 3 says that fourteen Japanese transports were in the harbor with nearly eight thousand troops. Owing to fears of an uprising of insurgent tribes the garrison at Seoul has been reinforced. The expense to Japan of maintaining her army in Corea is sixty thousand pounds.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Advices to the state department from Shanghai deny that the two Japanese students arrested as spies were executed by the Chinese after their surrender to the U. S. consul.

ELECTION BETTING.

An Important Decision Rendered by the Supreme Court.

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—General Booth, of the Salvation Army, and party arrived to-day.

The supreme court held to-day that Stakeholder Walsh in the London election betting case between Walsh and Trebilcock ought not to pay over the stakes, as betting on elections was illegal. Trebilcock bet with Richards, and Walsh held their money, a thousand dollars in all. The court below decided with Trebilcock, but to-day the supreme court reversed this decision.

In the Quebec land slide case, involving damage by a land slide at the citadel some years ago, it was held that the crown was not liable.

POLITICAL WHISPERINGS.

Cleveland Orders Officials to Cancel Campaign Engagements.

Washington, Oct. 9.—There has been political developments in Washington within the last day or two. Chief of these has been a general order from President Cleveland directing the leading government officials to cancel their campaign engagements and to remain wholly out of the political contest until further orders. Another positive statement is made that the President will not write any letter in the New York campaign. A letter received here from a friend of Senator Hill states that Hill will soon place in the hands of Governor Flower his resignation from the senate. The reason given is that Hill does not want to appear to be holding the senatorship as a thing to fall back on in case of his defeat for governor. It is said, however, that Governor Flower will withhold his acceptance of the resignation.

CHURCH CONGRESS.

Annual Meeting Held at Exeter This Morning.

London, Oct. 9.—A dispatch from Exeter says: "Everything is in readiness for the opening of the annual church congress to-morrow. Churchmen from all parts of the country, as well as a large number of prominent laymen, have already arrived in the city for the purpose of participating in the discussions. Right Rev. Frederick Temple, Bishop of London, accompanied by Very Rev. R. Gregory, D. D., dean of St. Paul's, arrived this morning and were escorted to the Guildhall by a committee representing the corporation of Exeter.

THE CZAR MAY RECOVER.

Opinion of Professor Leyden, the German Specialist.

Berlin, Oct. 9.—Professor Leyden, the distinguished specialist, who recently professionally attended the czar, said today that, all things considered, the czar's recovery is possible. His chief trouble, he said, is granulated contraction of the kidneys. The heart is also affected, causing difficult breathing and fits of unconsciousness. There was no dropsy, but incipient diabetes existed.

A MENACE TO SEALS.

Whale Killers Getting Very Plentiful in North Pacific Waters.

The sealers returning from the North Pacific Ocean and the Behring Sea report that great schools of whale killers have invaded those waters this year and have wrought inestimable damage to the seal herds. They were particularly plentiful around the seal rookeries, and the employees of the commercial company reported that they had attacked and destroyed hundreds of seals. The residents of Unalaska say that several winters past many of the seals have come down off Unalaska and they have seen the killers among them striking right and left. Captain William Cox of the schooner Sapphire, said this morning that he never saw so many of the killers before in his life. He says that the matter is one for serious consideration. Captain Williams, of the Olsen, also believes that the question is a serious one. He has been watching the matter for a couple of years and has observed when following the herds that whenever the killers appeared the seals disappeared. He believes that the killers can be easily killed and has killed them with a rifle.

It might be only a drop in the bucket, but possibly might do some good if every sealer and patrol vessel destroyed every killer on sight.

GERMANY WILL RETALIATE.

American Tariff Aimed Against German Dealers.

Berlin, Oct. 9.—In interviews with a number of leading dealers in sugar at Madaburg the opinion was expressed that under the American tariff bill the increased duty on sugar was aimed at Germany. It was predicted that if continued in force it would ruin the large beet-root sugar farmers. It was thought, however, that America would soon repeal the law. If it did not it was the opinion of the dealers that the government would be forced to adopt repressive measures against American imports.

Condensed Dispatches.

The corner stone of the commercial travellers' home of America at Binghamton, N. Y., was laid to-day with fitting ceremonies.

The new mills of the American tin plate factory at Elwood, Ind., started up last night. There will be a reduction of wages.

Twelve thousand women cloak makers of New York went out on strike yesterday. Seven thousand men will go out to-morrow.

McKinley will not take part in the Louisiana campaign.

Samuel Cook, one of the cruiser Baltimore's crew injured in the street fight at Valparaiso, Chili, fell from the scaffold of the new post office building at Washington yesterday and died from his injuries.

A broad gauge local train from East Oakland, Cal., ran into an open switch and off a blind track into the mud flats. No one was injured. This is the second accident of a similar nature that has occurred at the same place within a fortnight.

Chicago is celebrating to day in memory of the famous fete day at the World's Fair and also the anniversary of the burning of the city.

A wagon, containing a party of hop-pickers, was struck by a train at the railroad crossing at Unatham, England, to-day. Nine were killed and the rest more or less injured. A dense fog prevailed at the time.

DEATH OF EARL GREY.

One of England's Oldest Peers and at One Time a Prominent Politician.

He Devoted His Later Days in Writing Letters on Political Subjects.

London, Oct. 9.—Earl Grey died today, aged 92 years.

The Right Hon. Henry Grey, K. G., born December 28, 1802, the eldest son of the late earl, who was premier in 1830-34, was educated at Trinity college, Cambridge, and as Lord Howick was returned to the house of commons in 1826 as member for Winchelsea, in 1830 for Higham Ferrars, at the general election of 1831 for Northumberland, and after the passing of the Reform bill for the northern division of that county. On the formation of his father's ministry he was appointed under secretary for the colonies, but in 1833 resigned in consequence of the determination of the cabinet not to attempt the immediate emancipation of the slaves. He afterwards held for a short period the post of under secretary for home affairs, and on the formation of the Melbourne ministry in 1835 became secretary for war. Having at the general election of 1841 lost his seat for Northumberland, which he had represented for ten years. He was returned in September of that year for Sunderland, and exercized his powers as a debater in opposition to the Peel government. Lord Howick succeeded his father as third Earl Grey July 17, 1845, and on the construction of a Whig cabinet by Lord J. Russell in 1846 accepted the position of secretary of state for the colonies, resigning with his colleagues in 1852. Lord Grey, who figured prominently in the opposition to Lord Derby, was not included in the coalition cabinet, did not approve of the policy of Lord Aberdeen's cabinet in declaring war against Russia, and explained his peculiar views on this question in a long speech on May 25, 1855. For many years he has only rarely spoken in the house of lords, but frequently wrote long and weighty letters to the Times on the questions of the day. His lordship was the author of "Colonial Policy of Lord Russell's Administration," 1853, and of "Essay on Parliamentary Government as to Reform," 1858, of which a new edition appeared in 1864.

DISASTROUS MINE FIRE.

Five Men Known to be Killed and Others Injured.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 9.—A miner's lamp on the head of Irvine Buffington ignited the wood work of the shaft and a fire ensued in the Luke Fiddler mine last night. The carpenters at work repairing the shaft gave the alarm and the miners and carpenters commenced a race to the surface of the mine, which was rapidly filling with smoke. This morning Irvine Buffington was found dead in the mine, and it is known for a certainty that four others are in the mine. Efforts are being made to rescue the men, with little hope of success. The fire is still raging.

CANADIAN NEWS.

An Eloping Elocutionist—Bicyclist Run Over at Hamilton.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Edgar J. Ebbels, a well known elocutionist of this city, disappeared a few weeks ago. His sudden departure caused a ripple of excitement, which has now been increased by it having leaked out that he was foiled in an attempted elopement with a young woman whose parents took her from the train as it was pulling out of the station. Ebbel's wife left on Saturday in search of her husband, who is said to be in Texas.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 9.—At the conference of the provincial boards of trade, there was passed a resolution drawing the attention of the government and railways to the importance of fostering the use of Canadian instead of American potatoes, especially in winter.

Carleton Place, Ont., Oct. 9.—Mrs. J. E. Irvine was driving into town last night from Brockville with her children. One of them slipped out and in trying to rescue the child Mrs. Irvine toppled over and broke her neck. She died almost immediately.

Hamilton, Oct. 9.—At noon yesterday a trolley car ran over and instantly killed Robert Welsham, a dry goods salesman. Welsham was crossing the track on a bicycle when the car struck him. Both wheels passed over his chest. He was aged thirty and leaves a wife and two children.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 9.—At the three bye-elections last week, the returns for which are only now completed, the ministers who sought re-election, have all been returned by good majorities over the Whiteway candidates.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Elaborate preparations are being made for the unveiling of the Macdonald memorial in Queen's Park. A large gathering, including many from Toronto and Ottawa will witness the ceremony.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES.

Joint Action Being Taken to Protect Foreigners in Pekin.

London, Oct. 9.—A Standard dispatch from Berlin says the negotiations of the powers with the United States with a view to the joint protection of their subjects in China are said to be much advanced by the Anglo-French agreement on the subject, and a general concert may shortly be expected. The dispatch further says that Austria has entrusted the protection of her subjects in China to Germany.

The Japanese government has instructed Field Marshal Yamagata to inform the diplomats at Seoul that he will not allow the Japanese army to plunder Pekin in case that city is taken. This assurance will probably induce the diplomats to stay in Pekin, even should the emperor leave the capital. They will, at any rate, attempt to negotiate a peace by asking Japan to be moderate in her demands.

The emperor's palace in Pekin is now guarded by Manchu troops only. The Japanese army advancing on Pekin is said to have many Coreans in its ranks.

The recent statement that American officers had entered the Japanese army has been rectified. It now appears that General Buegles, of the American staff, and several other American officers were readily permitted by the Japanese government to follow the campaign, but solely as spectators.

A dispatch to the Times from Tientsin, dated Saturday, says the Japanese are pursuing the campaign toward Moukden cautiously, and are avoiding any dashing enterprises. Their cruisers are closely watching the Chinese from the Gulf of Pechili. The dispatch says the fugitives from Pingyang describe the Japanese tactics as most scientific while their weapons are perfect. On the other hand the Chinese operations are said to be conducted in an antiquated fashion, and there is considerable disagreement among the Chinese generals. The Chinese are gaining the sympathy of the Corean people by paying for their supplies and maintaining strict discipline. The dispatch concludes with the statement that the admiral of the French fleet has arrived.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Times says the negotiations mentioned by the Cologne Gazette, semi-official, looking to the adoption of joint measures by Great Britain, Germany and other powers for the protection of their subjects in China, are quite distinct from any eventual interference between the belligerents with a view to diminishing the area of the hostilities, Germany's commercial interests in Japan and China being second only to Great Britain's.

A dispatch sent from Shanghai says that Prince Kung, the emperor's uncle, now president of the Tsung Li Yamen and the admiralty, to whom has been entrusted the war with Japan, remains in Pekin, where he is occupied in providing for the defence of the capital. Viceroy Li Hung Chang has sent another army of eight thousand well drilled men into Pekin. Four thousand rifles were landed at Taku from a Hamburg steamer last week.

Rome, Oct. 9.—A telegram from Pekin announces that the Italian minister, acting under instructions from his government, has ordered the Italian consul at Seoul to observe the strictest neutrality. It is said that the minister declines to accede to the views contained in a note addressed to the Tsung Li Yamen to the representatives accredited to the Pekin court, by which China sought to limit the rights of neutral powers to freedom of navigation in Corean waters. The British, Russian and French representatives forwarded a similar answer to the Tsung Li Yamen.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Deceased Had Been Slowly Failing for Four or Five Years.

Boston, Oct. 8.—Heart failure was the immediate cause of death of Oliver Wendell Holmes, though the doctor has slowly been failing for the past four or five years. An asthmatic difficulty also assisted in the final break down of the aged "Autocrat." Ten days ago Dr. Holmes returned to his Boston residence from his summer home at Beverly farm. Before that time slight symptoms of improvement in his condition were noted, and the removal was thought advisable. It proved, however, very fatiguing, and the doctor did not regain his former condition.

Last Friday a sudden attack of heart failure, with the long standing asthmatic trouble, prostrated him, but yesterday morning he had [illegible]

After his physicians had gone, however, the doctor was seized with a severe spasm, and before medical aid could be called he had passed away. He was unconscious for a short time previous to his death. Around his bedside were gathered the members of his family, Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes, jr., the only surviving son; Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes, jr., and Edward J. Holmes, nephew of the poet. Although the poet's death occurred shortly after midday, it did not become known until late to-night. The house was darkened and police guarded the entrance to prevent the household from being disturbed.

CHINESE TOURISTS.

A Party Will Cross the Pacific on the Next Empress.

New York, Oct. 9.—Two hundred and fifty Chinamen, who had grown rich in the laundry business in various parts of New England and the Southern States, were hauled out of the Grand Central station last evening in the emigrant cars on the New York Central railroad. They were in charge of Lon Wah, the Chinese agent of the Union Pacific road, who every few months plans an excursion of Chinamen to their native land. Each man yesterday carried a little bag of clothes. It took eight express wagons to get to the station what other baggage they had.

The Chinese will be seven days reaching Vancouver after leaving Montreal. The voyage across the Pacific should be made in 16 days. In the party was Sam Chin, an Americanized Chinaman of Brooklyn, who is going home for six months missionary work. He laughed yesterday when it was suggested that his companions were going home to enlist in the army. They were going home to their families and not to fight, he said. As for himself, if he got into any trouble with his government he could claim the protection of the stars and stripes.

PRINTERS' UNION.

Annual Address Read by President Prescott.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 9.—In his address at the opening of the International Typographical Union convention yesterday, President Prescott said: "Since the last convention we have been called upon to mourn the death of two friends and benefactors, Mr. Anthony J. Drexel and Mr. George W. Childs. It is superfluous in addressing union printers to refer to the many excellencies of our departed friends. They occupied a position that was unique in their relations to organized labor. Though the printers of Philadelphia had previously had manifestations of their good will, the unconditional donation of $10,000 to the International Typographical Union eight years ago ensured a warm place in the hearts of trades unionists in general and our fraternity in particular. Under these circumstances it is appropriate and seemly that our craft should demonstrate our appreciation of their worth. Philadelphia Typographical Union has undertaken the task of erecting a suitable monument to Mr. Childs, and while believing that it would be better to have the memorial embrace the name of Mr. Drexel also, it is hoped that this convention will co-operate in this project by donating a suitable sum, so that this tribute to their memory may be commensurate with our respect, and a credit to the craft."

On trades unions and politics, President Prescott said: "While a firm believer in the use of the ballot as the most effective instrument by which to obtain an amelioration of conditions, I can not refrain from admitting that the introduction of politics into trades unions will be provocative of evil if the members are not tolerant enough to admit of a free and fair discussion, without resorting to intrigues, having for their object the compelling of obedience to the dictates of any particular party or school of thought. In this, to my mind, commendable desire of many of our members 'to go into politics,' we must remember that many affiliated with us on the assumption that the International Typographical Union was a trades organization purely. In this they were correct, and we must be careful not to encroach on their rights as members or citizens. Any attempt to dictate on political matters will cause a great disturbance and possibly disruption."

The reports of the sixteen district organizers of the union show that considerable progress has been made during the last year, and that the local unions in nearly all parts of the United States and Canada were in a prosperous condition, both numerically and financially. The committee appointed to investigate the existing conditions at the Home for Superannuated Printers at Colorado Springs, which was established mainly through the efforts of the International Union, reported that there was considerable discontent among the inmates of the institution, but attributed the dissatisfaction to the fact that the active and varied life of the printers contrasted strongly with the quiet of the home and some time was necessary before an inmate became accustomed to the surroundings. The report also called attention to the fact that an unusual number of patients have been expelled from the institution recently for drunkenness and recommends that local unions should investigate carefully the reputation and habits of applicants before recommending them for admission to the home. The session closed with the reading of the report on government control of the telegraph. After adjournment the delegates paraded through the principal streets of the city and disbanded at the city hall.

NEGROES IN THE SOUTH.

In New Orleans Their Term of Life Averages 24 Years.

Referring to the excessive mortality of the negroes in New Orleans—it is at least double that among the whites—The Times-Democrat of that city says: "The most important missionary work that can be done, and ought to be done, in the south is in the sanitation of the negro districts of the cities like New Orleans. Some $40,000,000 has been given toward the education of the colored race since the war, and twenty odd colleges endowed for their benefit. It would have been far better for the negroes had a portion of the money gone to establish their comfort, health and longer life, for their is little wisdom in teaching the negro youth, and allowing them to be carried off each year, as they are by the thousands, by diseases easily preventable or curable." Perhaps less than half the negroes in the city receive any medical attendance during illness, which is brought to attention only by the doctor's certificate of death. The result is that the average life of the New Orleans negro has been reduced to 24.2 years. It may be that the physician is not needed more than vigilance on the part of the board of health, for it is admitted that the negro's sanitary surroundings are of a nature to make him an easy prey to disease. The houses in the negro quarter are filthy, ill drained, and exposed to wind and weather. In many cases they should be condemned and torn down. New Orleans is probably well able to take care of the problem of negro mortality, if the authorities would set about it in the right way.

JUBILEE HOSPITAL DIRECTORS

The Proposed Maternity Home and Operating Hospital Discussed.

Nurses Unable to Attend to All the Patients at Present in the Wards.

The monthly meeting of the board of management of the Jubilee Hospital was held last evening, President Davies in the chair. The directors present were: Messrs. Yates, Brown, Braverman, Hayward, Shotbolt, Wilson, J. L. Crimp and Alexander Wilson.

Dr. Davie was also present by invitation to give his views respecting the proposed maternity Home. The maternity ward, he thought, could be run as part of the hospital. It would no doubt be a good thing and would supersede the home already in the city. It should have room for eight or ten patients but the Pemberton bequest would not build this. It would not be advisable to build a small ward as in a few years it would not be large enough and would be superseded by a larger one, and the small one would not meet the object for which it was built, namely, a monument to the late Mr. Pemberton. Instead of erecting a small offshoot the directors should extend the present plan of the hospital. The idea to build an operating theatre was a good one and would meet the wishes of Mrs. Pemberton as it would be a distinctive thing and would give the rooms at present used for operating for the use of patients and give more accommodation. The present operating rooms were not large enough when a number of medical men were present and did not tend to the benefit of the patient. In a proper operating room, those present could see an operation without interfering with patients and those engaged in operating. The proper place for the theatre was in the centre of the ward and in easy reach of each ward. The money could not be better spent, while there was not sufficient for a proper maternity home. It was a mistake to put up a small adjunct simply to train a few nurses. He was in favor of training nurses but they should be trained in a proper hospital. An operating theatre could be built for the amount of the bequest. Another advantage was to have an operating theatre separated from the hospital. He explained several plans for an operating theatre in the east and in Europe.

The secretary read a very long letter from Hon. (Dr.) J. S. Helmcken on the proposed maternity home, and there was a general discussion of the doctor's letter.

Mr. Alexander Wilson favored the erection of the maternity home even if the present plans had to be modified.

Mr. Hayward said the committee was forced to bring in the report they did as they were told that the home could not be built in connection with the hospital. Now Drs. Helmcken and Davie said this could be done.

On motion of Mr. Hayward the letter was received with thanks and the committee authorized to arrange with the daily papers to print the same.

Dr. Richardson reported that the cost per patient during July was $1.17, August $1.13 1-2, and September $1. During September the number of patients was the highest average in the history of the institution, at times there being 50 and more patients. At present the nurses cannot do the work satisfactorily and outside help had to be engaged. There would either have to be more nurses or the number of patients limited. Received and filed.

The matron reported that the wards were full and the cases severer than usual. The staff of nine nurses was inadequate and she would like to take on one or two probationers if there was accommodation for them. The following donations were acknowledged:—Plums, from a friend, and Mrs. Pemberton, and reading matter from the James Bay Athletic Association. Received and filed.

The house steward reported that the supplies were satisfactory and acknowledged the donation of one hundred pounds of feed for the chickens. The report was received and the donor was thanked.

It was stated that the tender of a Chinaman for vegetables was $80 a year lower than the lowest white tender, Mr. G. A. Knight. It was moved by Mr. Hayward, seconded by Mr. Shotbolt, that the contract be awarded to the lowest white tenderer.

There was a long discussion in which [illegible] Chinese gardeners, and Messrs. Brown, Hayward and Crimp the white men. The vote was a tie, the president voting against the resolution.

The meeting adjourned at 10:05.

A WONDERFUL MONSTER.

A Description of the Most Uncouth Beast On the Face of the Globe.

A mountain of heavy flesh, wrinkled and rough, ugly as a satyr, and even more clumsy than a hippopotamus, lives in the Arctic ocean wherever there are clam beds and enough open water to afford him a home. The Pacific walrus is the most uncouth and ungainly beast that ever sets foot on land. For two or three centuries he has been called the Morse and also the Sea Horse—possibly because he is more like a horse than a humming bird, though not much.

Three hundred years ago, when travellers and men of science were struggling to obtain a mental grasp of the form and habits of this strange creature, but wholly unaided by the collector and taxidermist, their pictorial efforts produced some astonishing results—just as may always be expected under such conditions. Marvellous, indeed, were some of the pictures of the walrus that were published in the sixteenth century, in the dark ages when taxidermists were not and zoological museums were without form and void. And yet, with the exception of the figure by Olaus Magnus, which is half fish and half hog, with four eyes on each side and a pair of impossible horns, none of these grotesque figures are one whit more wonderful than is the true character of the Pacific walrus.

His real personality was only half known to the world until, in 1872, Mr. Elliot landed on the rocky shore of Walrus island, armed with a sketch book, note book and tape measure, and made an elaborate series of studies of this species actually at arm's length. His published pictures and notes were such a complete revelation regarding the actual form and habits of the Pacific walrus as to cause much astonishment among naturalists, and to some it seemed almost beyond belief that the form of the walrus was really as pictured from life by this painstaking artist.—St. Nicholas.

False Statements.

AWAY WITH THEM!

It is Only the Lever of Truth that Moves the Great World.

A Marvellous Cure in Virden, Manitoba.

False statements, like counterfeit coin, for a time will pass current and undetected.

The false statements made in connection with a host of common medicines have duped and diappointed thousands of our suffering people in the past, and at the present time there are many who are being deceived from day to day. These worthless and deceptive medicines with all their false assertions about curing diseases, are now being posted on the black list in all well-regulated communities, and are carefully avoided and shunned by the wise and prudent.

It is only the powerful lever of truth that can move intelligent communities and peoples. This mighty lever is Paine's Celery Compound, an agent that has never had an equal in the history of medicine for the curing of the sick and diseased.

Every statement made in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, rings out with honesty and truth. The letters of testimony come from our Canadian people, whom doubters may interview or write to for particulars.

Paine's Celery Compound has thousands of records of victories over rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, dyspepsia, nervousness, headaches, sleeplessness, kidney and liver troubles, general weakness and lost vitality.

The marvellous cure of Mr. James Leverington, of Virden, Man., by Paine's Celery Compound, after the failure of doctors and other agencies, should be sufficient proof for all fair minded men and women who are honestly seeking for health, strength and new life.

Mr. Leverington writes as follows about his success with the world's best medicine:—

"I think it my duty without solicitation from any one, to write in the interest of other sufferers, and give you a testimonial in favor of your (to me) almost miraculous remedy, Paine's Celery Compound. For more than a year I was suffering from the agonizing pains of sciatica; and after trying all that medical skill could devise, and using many remedies, patent and otherwise, I concluded to try the hot springs at Banff, under the able superintendence of Dr. Brett. I took the treatment thoroughly and carefully for six weeks, and came home at the end of that time racked with pain and weighing 43 pounds less. At this juncture, when hope had almost fled, I heard of Paine's Celery Compound. It seemed suited to my case and I sent to my druggist, Mr. J. W. Higginbotham, of this place, and asked about it. He recommended it to me and I took a bottle. I soon began to feel better, and after taking a second bottle I was a cured man and threw away my crutches.

"I keep a bottle on hand in case of any return of the complaint. I am now 58 years old, and I feel as spry and healthy and free from pain as I ever did in my life. I was born in Norfolk, England, and came to Canada when [illegible] years old. I was brought up in the township of Cornwall, Ont., and came to Manitoba eight years ago. Have always been a farmer, and am as able to do hard work now as ever I was.

"With a heart full of gratitude for benefits derived from the use of your remedy, and a wish to influence others who may suffer, I gladly and freely indite this letter.

"Rev. Mr. Talbot, Methodist minister of Elkhorn, can confirm my statements, and will do so if written to."

Mr. Higginbotham, the successful and extremely popular druggist of Virden, vouches for Mr. Leverington's statements, as follows:—

"I have known Mr. Leverington for two years or more, and can confirm what he says in regard to his cure by Paine's Celery Compound. Ever since his cure he has been sounding its praises, and he is a perfect enthusiast on the subject of Paine's Celery Compound. I believe him to be thoroughly reliable."

"HOW CAN WE?"

A Cruel Husband Who Could Not Command the Elements.

A gentleman, accompanied by a lady wearing a handsome dress and bonnet, came out of the Albert hall one night to find it raining, while they were without umbrella or waterproof clothing.

"Why, Charles," the lady cried, "it's raining!"

"So I see," said Charles, calmly.

"Well, what shall we do?"

"I rather think we shall have to let it rain," replied the matter of fact husband.

Excited by the disaster awaiting her garments, the lady amused the bystanders greatly by saying:

"Why, Charlie, how can we, when I have on this light dress and bonnet?"—Tit-Bits.

QUEBEC AFFAIRS.

A rather acrimonious discussion is going on in Quebec over Treasurer Hall's disagreement with his colleagues and his subsequent resignation. The Montreal Star sided with Mr. Hall and condemned Premier Taillon's loan policy, at the same time giving Lieutenant-Governor Chapleau credit for being mainly responsible for the policy. Thereupon L'Evenement, the government organ at Quebec, retorted with the declaration that all the fuss was raised because the money was to be borrowed in France and not in London, and it proceeded to ask:—

Will the Star tell us if the English members would have broken away from Mr. Taillon if he had made the same loan in England that he had made in France and if he had consented to sacrifice the interests of the province to English capitalists. When will we in this province, as in the Dominion at large, cease sacrificing our dearest interests for race considerations. When will the English cease to find bad, and even odious, all which comes either directly or indirectly from France, and when will Canadians—a large proportion of them at any rate—throw aside this feeling of instinctive defiance which keeps away from the English.

There was coupled with the polite threat that "if with no other reason than a ridiculous spite the English members want to create embarrassments means will have to be found to govern without them." And so there is a foundation laid for a quarrel that would be more interesting than pretty. We do not know what foundation there may have been for the Star's charge that Mr. Chapleau was the real author of the loan through his position as chief executive officer in Canada of the Credit Foncier. Nor can we tell whether its statement is correct that none of the English-speaking members of the assembly would accept any responsibility for the loan, though we fancy the Conservative English members will hardly be ready to desert the Taillon government on this account alone. It is altogether likely that Mr. Hall had other reasons than this one for resigning, and that he found his position intolerable because he could not agree with the course of his government in general. As to the loan itself the point of difference was the question whether money should be borrowed to meet the loan of four millions contracted by the Mercier government a short time before its downfall. Mr. Hall wished to use for this purpose money due by the Canadian Pacific railway company for the North Shore railway, and which the company was ready to pay. The premier and his other colleagues preferred the plan of borrowing money from the Credit Lyonnais at the nominal rate of three per cent., the bonds being placed at the price of 77.32, which makes the real interest 4 per cent. To raise $4,000,000 at the rate of 77.32 of course meant the issue of bonds to the amount of $5,320,000, and it was to this addition of $1,320,000 to the debt that Mr. Hall objected. The company, for its part, intimated that if the government decided to go on with the loan and the C. P. R. Company was induced to keep for a longer term the North Shore purchase money, on which it pays 5 per cent. Mr. Hall therefore resigned, and further trouble may yet be forthcoming.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Gazette says:—"To refer a big subject to a royal commission is one of the easiest ways of spending a lot of money and getting very little for it. The recent labor commission cost the British government $250,000, and it is now described as a gigantic failure." The Dominion government's royal commission on the liquor question is on the same footing.

At New Westminster Mr. Alexander Ewen appealed to Judge Bole from the convictions of the magistrates' court in the fish offal cases. It is related that the appellant's counsel proved notice of appeal to respondent, and that the latter failed to appear. The convictions were therefore quashed. This looks as though the fishery department were "weakening" a little in its enforcement of the precious fishery regulations. Notwithstanding all their brave talk, Sir Hibbert Tupper and Mr. Wilmot are apparently somewhat alarmed by the storm their operations have raised.

A POOR DEFENCE.

The organs of protection do not pretend to defend it on principle. At one time we are told by the Colonist that some certain eminent man in England has declared in favor of a return to it, or that "fair trade" is gaining ground with [illegible] the reverses sustained by the party of freer trade in Australia or the United States and gleefully asserts that the principle of free trade is not gaining ground and never will be an accomplished fact among nations. The adoption of this line of argument is a plain confession that those who find it necessary to resort to it feel the weakness of the protectionist position. Recognizing the impossibility of defending political folly or wrong-doing by appealing to men's intelligence or sense of right, and failing to find evidence that will satisfy common sense of the beneficial effects of the national policy in the experience of this Dominion, they seek to intimidate men who have been under the influence of old prejudices and whose convictions are or might be awakened by free trade arguments by exaggerating the power of the influences, which are being exerted to perpetuate protection, and by creating the impression that whether right or wrong protection is too strong to be overthrown they hope to retain their political support. Until the Colonist finds some perfect man who is incapable of holding an erroneous opinion, or until it can find someone who is universally recognized as such, the use of this argument must be taken as the plainest evidence that it has no better to offer. Who can regard the greatness of any man as a sufficient guarantee of the soundness of the opinions he may hold or the justice or wisdom of the measures he may favor? Or who will assert that any policy or theory because it secures the support of numbers must be right and always and inevitably successful? Have the great questions affecting civil and religious liberty which have agitated our race in the past been brought to a permanent settlement from such considerations? The observant student of history must see in its pages unanswerable evidence that the more complete and universal the triumph of party or policy which implements injustice the nearer is the day of reckoning and overthrow. There is a higher standard for which a political party or a people should contend than the measure of success which attends the effort, and there is a truer gauge of the soundness of political conclusions than the eminence or otherwise of those who advance or support them. In the great heart of the Anglo-Saxon race there ever has been an abiding confidence in the [illegible] of right, which has always led them in the end to a decision in accordance with that confidence. It is to this public conscience that free traders make their appeal. Reason, justice, righteousness, freedom are their witnesses. They challenge the advocates of protection to judgment after a fair argument, and to avoid that challenge and to seek to bolster up protection by citing the eminence of those who believe in it, is but to betray the cowardice with which error inspires its champions.

The protectionist press has devoted a great deal of effort to convince the electorate that the Liberal leader and party have no adequate conception of the difficulties in the way of reform, and that their policy of reform is of too indefinite a character to inspire the people with confidence to intrust them with the task. But what value can we attach to solicitude for the plans of reformers or the qualifications of their leaders on the part of those to whom the urgent need of reform itself is no cause of anxiety? Those who can look with complacency upon the present condition of rottenness in Canadian public affairs and advocate the continuance in office of the men who are responsible are scarcely the men to whom we should go for a judgment as to the value of policies or the qualifications of leaders for reform.

No well-informed Liberal free trader denies the difficulties in the way of putting right the wrongs which are the outgrowth of protection. To curtail a lavish public expenditure which has become under protectionist management as much a corruption fund as an expenditure for public necessities, to liquidate an enormous public debt and disappoint those who profit by the creation of public debts, to undertake the correction of a corrupt and corruption producing condition of public morality which has appeared in Canada as in the United States and in about the same proportion as we have imitated them in protection, is no light task to be undertaken by the ablest and purest of men. But is the magnitude of the task to deter a liberty-loving and a justice-loving people from undertaking it? Does not the magnitude of the difficulties in the way make the more commendable the willingness to attempt it? The present party in power attempted it, but a tinkering of the tariff which makes confusion worse confounded and the release of McGreevy and Connolly from jail are the evidences of their capacity for the work. The Colonist appears satisfied with this, and while it is we must refuse to pay any deference to its judgment on other reformers and their efforts. Now as to the complaint of indefiniteness. Mr. Laurier said in his speech at the market hall: "I am opposed to protection because it corrupts men," and he gave instance upon instance where it had done so. [illegible] ance, made no distinction between Liberals and their opponents. He is opposed to it because it corrupts all men and because of this. "So soon as I am intrusted with the power to do it that very day I propose to cut the head off protection," "I shall levy all taxes for the purposes of public revenue, not one dollar to enrich a private citizen," said Mr. Laurier. If these utterances were a little less definite they would not be so disquieting to his opponents. But Mr. Laurier knows that however much free traders may desire to establish complete free trade great reforms do not come in a day. Among English-speaking peoples the reforms of the past have been accomplished gradually, and the Liberal leader and his followers must consider not only what they would like but what is possible. The present party in power have shown what is possible for them. The Liberals believe in a greater possibility.

A. Bridgman, a respected lawyer of Ridgetown, has been arrested for the misappropriation of about $600 trust funds.

Mayor Stewart of Hamilton has been summoned to appear in the police court on a charge of assaulting William Lethbridge.

B. W. Prittie, a prominent citizen of Toronto, charged with setting fire to his own house some time ago, was found not guilty by the jury.

Ex-Treasurer Hall has written a long letter to the English members of the Quebec assembly in explanation of his resignation. He claims that Taillon has not acted in good faith.

The London trades and labor council passed a resolution deprecating the steps taken by public bodies to have abolished the tax of $50 a head on Chinamen entering Canada.

The Montreal presbytery has decided to send a representative to the foreign missions committee of the general assembly to urge the appointment of a superintendent of Chinese work in Ontario and Quebec.

One hundred and seventy thousand acres of territory have been added to the Algonquin provincial park. Its total size is now over a million acres, making it next to the Yellowstone Park, the largest in the world.

Controller of Customs Wallace has decided that the evidence in the case of jute cloth detained at Montreal was so contradictory as to whether the cloth was outside or free that the case must go to the exchequer court for decision.

A. N. C. Black, private banker, hitherto highly respected, has left Dutton. He was treasurer of the high school board and was asked to pay over money, $2200, but failed to do so. He had carried on a banking business in Dutton for 12 years.

The Detroit Gas Company has closed negotiations whereby natural gas from Canadian fields controlled by Hiram Walker and others, will be piped under the Detroit river and supplied to natural gas consumers.

A cattle driver named Lohman, living in Stouffville, left the country about a fortnight ago. It now turns out that before departing Lohman committed forgery by wholesale. Scores of notes bearing the signatures of farmers alleged to have been forged by him, have turned up at different banks.

MacWherrell will not be tried again on the remaining indictment against him for the murder of Eliza Williams. The attorney-general's department take the ground that there is no guarantee that his sentence would not again be commuted were he found guilty of additional murder and sentenced to death. It is also extremely doubtful if John Walker, his alleged accomplice, will ever be put on trial.

Alex. McEachren and his wife committed suicide at Dartmouth, N. S., by taking poison. The cause is unknown. McEachren and his family moved to Dartmouth from Halifax several months ago. They had four children, the eldest a girl of 15. A piece of paper was found on the floor on which was written: "My wife accidentally took poison; I go to join her." The family was in poor circumstances.

COFFEE WON THE RACE.

How a Maine Horse was Able to Defeat a Strong Competitor Near All.

At the midsummer races in Augusta, Maine, an exciting race took place between Chase & Sanborn's famous son Haley and a well-known flyer named Gen. Briggs. Haley was suffering from pink eye, and after winning two heats lost two, but was saved by being given a quart of coffee, which his owner claims was a better and safer plan than doping or drenching with whiskey, which is held to be dangerous.

—The Fur Trade Review says: "Some of the Victoria, B. C., and eastern papers have published reports to the effect that sealers of the former place were willing to accept from the United States a lump sum of $425,000 in settlement of their claims on account of seizures in the past year. The sealers may obtain that amount, they may obtain less, but one thing is certain, that they have not as yet been offered any definite amount."

—An accident very similar to the one that occurred on the Royal Arthur several weeks ago occurred recently on board the U. S. S. Mohican in Behring sea, although in the latter case the accident did not prove fatal. Lieuts. J. B. Collins and Lucas were examining a pistol which the latter was holding, when it was discharged. The ball entered Lieut. Collins' arm and could not be located by the doctor.

—Charles J. Burnes, third son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Burnes, died this morning at his parents' home. He was a sufferer from Bright's disease, attended by dropsy, and while he was ailing for a long time he did not take to his bed until a fortnight ago. The news of his death was a painful surprise to a large circle of friends. He was a native of Victoria and reached man's estate but three months ago. The funeral will take place on Thursday morning at 9.45 o'clock from the Burnes house, Bastion square, and at 10 o'clock from St. Andrew's R. C. cathedral.

—Captain Charles H. Sawyer, who commanded the bark Orpheus at the time she ran into and sank the steamer Pacific below Cape Flattery, died at Port Townsend on Saturday evening. The accident occurred on the night of November 4th, 1875. Captain Sawyer was severely criticized at the time for the action he took after the collision. Instead of returning to the sinking steamer, as his crew begged him to do, he kept on his cruise and beached his vessel on Vancouver Island, where her remains still are. There were over two hundred persons on board the Pacific at the time, and only two were saved. For a long time after the catastrophe Sawyer was afraid to be seen on the streets of any of the Northwest cities, as relatives and friends of the victims were ready to do almost anything to kill him. For several weeks he was secreted in the residence of the collector of customs at Port Townsend. During late years he had worried much over the event, and often after sitting in silence for a long while would sit up and say, "I heard the whistle," explaining that he could frequently hear the whistle of the Pacific.

—The sealing schooner Mascotte, Captain Sieward, arrived home yesterday afternoon with a catch of 1100 skins, about half of which were taken in the Behring sea with spears. She had a crew of Hydah Indians, who while they were very good with shot guns could do very little with spears. The voyage was an uneventful one. The schooner will dock immediately and discharge her cargo of skins.

—Residents of Victoria West will have an opportunity to register as Dominion voters to-morrow evening at Redding's store, where a notary public will be in attendance from 7:30 o'clock. Esquimalt voters will have a similar opportunity on Thursday evening, the place being the Esquimalt Hotel and the hour of commencement being 8 o'clock. All should remember that no names can be added to the list after Monday next. There is no fee or cost of any kind.

—Sewer construction has been commenced on the main business streets in the lower part of the city. When this and the work which has been under way for some time, is completed, all the main streets will be sewered. Very little more tearing up will be necessary on account of sewers, as the connections have been constructed up to the edge of the pavements, so property owners will have very little difficulty in connecting. There are several places where the contractors are leaving the surplus piles of earth blocking up the streets very much longer than is necessary.

—Every British subject of the full age of 21 years and who has resided in the dominion of Canada for a year, should see that his name is on the voters' list before the end of this week. There are many who imagine for one reason or another that their names are on the list, who will find that when the election comes they have not got a vote. It is a very easy matter to register, and does not cost anything so that everyone entitled to a vote should see that his name is on the list. There will be a notary at the Times office from 7:30 until 9 o'clock to-morrow evening to register voters and during the day names will be taken by George Powell, over the White House, Government street, Archer Martin, over the Bank of Montreal, and Lee & Fraser's, Trounce avenue.

—A dispatch from Port Townsend says: "Much speculation is being indulged in by shipping men relative to the identity of the wreckage of the vessel reported off Cape Flattery last week. All of the coasting vessels that have been out any length of time have been accounted for, and the absence of floating lumber causes an impression to prevail that a coal laden vessel has gone down. Some ship carpenters believe, however, that the late southern winds have driven the wreckage of some old wreck up from down coast. It is not an uncommon occurrence at this season of the year for vessels to report floating wreckage off the cape. Many shipping men believe, also, that subsequent developments will prove that no vessel has met with disaster."

—What promises to be the greatest attempt in the era of realism will be seen at the Victoria theatre next Friday and Saturday evenings in the melodrama of Lincoln J. Carter's "Fast Mail." The play is famous throughout the country for the completeness and magnitude of its mechanical effects. The production is under the personal supervision of its author, Lincoln J. Carter. Special scenery is carried for the ten complete sets used in the play. In the second act a steamboat is shown with the boiler rooms and their intricate machinery and the glowing furnaces. The boat is blown up by a tremendous explosion, and the wreck is seen going down in mid river. The great railway scene is another of the unprecedented achievements of their performance in the direction of realism. A freight train of fourteen cars is seen across the stage, with an illuminated caboose and a practical locomotive. The fireman and engineer are seen at their respective stations, looking like reality itself. A mail train comes speeding by and catches the mail pouch just as every one has seen it do many a time. In the last act Niagara Falls are shown in all their natural beauty. A cataract of real water is put on the stage, and it boils and foams in the most natural way. The soft moonlight adds to the effect, and the scene needs only the addition of the suspension bridge to complete the effect of reality. There will be a grand children's matinee at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The case is on this afternoon and it will be late in the day before it is concluded. McCabe is still an interesting subject from the effects of the beating given him.

—George R. Carter to-day assumes the secretaryship of the Y. M. C. A. and his connection with it will very likely mark a new era in its history. He was for eight years secretary of the Seattle association, and by good hard, and intelligent work raised it to prosperity, standing and influence. The different branches of work embraced by the Y. M. C. A. will all be taken up, and Mr. Carter's energy is almost certain of bringing success. New features will be introduced at once.

—The Victoria West Vigilantes who tore the obstruction down are going to charge the city $10 for the work, and have prepared the following letter to accompany the bill:

"To the Mayor and Aldermen:

"Gentlemen,—We, ratepayers of Victoria West, having applied to your honorable body for the removal of an obstruction or barricade erected across one of our main thoroughfares, known as the Craigflower road, having after several days' patient waiting discovered that none of the corporation laborers could be found with time enough to remove the said obstruction to public traffic, therefore secured the services of a number of able bodied men, and after considerable labor the obstruction was removed. We now, therefore, enclose the account for the said work to your honorable body, trusting the same will be paid to some charitable institution."

When all of the committee sign the letter it will be presented to the council.

TRAINS THAT PASS ONCE IN A WHILE

Written for the Times.

It was the junction of the Soo short line and that railway known as the Great Northern. A C. P. R. train lay waiting to be switched on to the main line, while, just behind it, a train on the Great Northern was pulling out of the depot at Minneapolis.

I had been standing at the rear end of my sleeper while the great C. P. R. engine was pulling its way out of the depot enclosure, but had now stepped down off the platform to place my feet for the last time on the soil of Minnesota. I was standing gazing at the faces of those in the Great Northern train, scanning as we do the faces of those we see once and never expect to see again.

As the second sleeper passed me a young lady darted out on the platform. As her train came to a dead stop she rushed up to me without a word of warning, fell into my arms, and said, "Oh, Jack, where in the wide world did you come from?"

I am not overly bashful, but am always very diffident in my demeanor towards the fair sex, but what can a fellow do when a pair of soft arms are round his neck, a pair of sweet blue eyes are looking into his, and——, well, there was a charming rosy mouth which could have beguiled a saint in Paradise, and I could not resist the temptation to meet that one sweet maidenly caress.

But her train had started, and with a hurried, "Good-bye, are you coming home for Christmas?" my fair "vision" sprang onto the platform and was borne away by the moving train. Down at my feet lay a dainty embroidered handkerchief. I picked it up and thrust it into my breast pocket just as the brakeman called out, "All aboard."

We had a great many passengers on board. Some were mine owners from the west who had been placing their stock on an eastern market, or had been purchasing the machinery necessary to develop their property. Some were tourists going God knows where, but having in their makeup that peculiar restlessness which marks the tourist in all quarters of the globe. A few were hunters off for a few weeks' sport in the Rockies, while the greater number were of that class of mortals who ride in the colonist sleeper and are always known by their tickets and the baskets and hampers of good things they carry with them on their journey to the land of the setting sun. A sturdy class they were, these colonists. Strong young Irishmen, with their hearty Kathleens and a batch or two of little Mikes and Bridgets. A solitary young Englishman or so, going out to make a fortune or a home for an impoverished family in the old country. One or two cautious Scots, whose names began with Mac and ended with something or other. A couple of Germans, who smoked pipes with long, strong stems and large bowls, and who saw in the smoke a land where there was no standing army and where there was no chance of fighting anything but poverty for years to come. And there was also a sprinkling of brawny Swedes, who also smoked and did not dream of a country where the Chinamen cut the wages and did all the work, although their tickets read "To Victoria, B. C."

After a couple of days' study of the landscape and my fellow passengers I bethought myself of the souvenir "my vision" had left me. It was hidden deep in my breast pocket. I drew it out. It was only a little white silk affair, with blue and white forget-me-nots engraved about the edges. In one corner was the name "Jean" engraved with Indian ink, and that was all. I never had a sister and from my early boyhood I had been denied the blessing of a home. Perhaps I had lived a fast life. Most all young men without any home ties are whirled away in a vortex of pleasure. But from the moment that I received that unexpected greeting from the pure lips of that beautiful girl a new resolve grew up in my soul, and I determined from that time henceforward to make my life worthy of a home in which a blue eyed woman with golden hair should hold supreme sovereignty.

Although we passed through some of the most magnificent scenery on the American continent, my thoughts seldom wandered for long from this Jean who had taken such a hold on my fancy. Would we not meet again? It was not likely. Sometimes the idea took possession of me to visit all the towns on the Great Northern. But my reveries were rudely broken by the train rushing into the—well, by the terminus of the road, and I was wakened by having my hand grasped by that of Jack Gay, my old friend and college chum, and answered his hearty, "How d'ye do, old fellow?"

I had been at work for some months on the staff of the most promising daily paper in the city. Often and often Jack had implored me to lay aside my work at night and go out for a little recreation. I had steadily refused. After he left me I would often look at the little handkerchief and wonder if the owner were far or near.

She might have been married. Zounds! what a fool I was. She had evidently taken me for her affianced;" and so on. There were many phases to the question.

One evening Jack came in and said, "Now, old fellow, you must come out to-night. The De Sponsers are giving an At Home, and you will incur their eternal displeasure if you do not favor them." But I was obstinate.

Jack was angry, and I, to save a rupture with my old friend, at last consented to go.

"I will be ready in half an hour."

In a short time we were paying our respects to the De Sponsors' venerable mother.

The house was crowed. This family was one of the oldest in the city, and there was none more poular. The elder Miss De Sponser took me in charge and made taings very pleasant for me, until I was glad I came.

After we had been seated for some moments beneath a large cluster of flowers, the young lady left me, saying she would be back in a short time.

I was surrounded by flowers. There were some which I had no doubt had been brought from Oriental homes. All were beautiful, and were quite in harmony with the throng of pleasure seeking people who filled the rooms.

I was drawn out from my contemplative dream by hearing my name pronounced. I rose and was introduced by Miss De Sponsor to "My cousin Jean, from Seattle. Miss Forest, Mr. Garrick." I was thunderstruck. I could scarce blunder out the little conventional phrase.

Yes, it was Jean, the "vision" of Minneapolis, and we met as strangers. If she realized ever having met me before she made no sign.

In the course of the night we had many stolen moments together. By successful maneuvering on my part we looked unsuccessfully for people who were always somewhere else. We lost ourselves in the flower garden. And when I bade my hostess good-bye the little, meaningless words of a departing guest never fell from a fellow lips.

A month later Jean became my wife.

Again two trains are standing on the tracks just outside the depot at Minneapolis. We were on the return trip of our wedding tour, Jean and I. But our stay was longer than that of six months before. There had been a wreck in the morning and in half an hour the tracks would be clear.

"Do you see that semaphore there?" said I to Jean.

She nodded and looked at me for further explanation.

"Well," said I, "there where that man is standing I held you in my arms for the first time."

I told her the story of the two trains. "Let us go to the spot," said my wife. When we reached it I said, taking out the little handkerchief, "Right here you dropped this."

But I got no further. There was a startled exclamation from two people, and my wife was clasped in the arms of some young fellow who bore a striking resemblance to myself, and in a few minutes I was introduced to my wife's "Brother Jack." WALT. IRVING.

ARDENT SPIRITS.

The Whole World Engaged in Supplying Man With Intoxicants.

A correspondent of the New York Herald calls attention to the fact that almost the whole world is given to supplying distilled spirits to satisfy the appetite of mankind, and it would appear that the effort made to suppress the desire for stimulants by the advocates of temperance is as impossible as to demand something in opposition to nature.

To give an idea of a few nations supplying the intoxicants, with their names and from what made, he herewith submits a few:

Aqua ardiente, made from agave tree, in Spain.

Arrack, made from coarse sugar, in India.

Mahwah arrack, made from juice of palm, in East Indies.

Arraka, made from mare's milk, in Tartary.

Arraki, made from dates, in Egypt.

Arika, made from cow's milk, in Iceland.

Brandy, made from grapes, figs, etc., in Europe and America.

Frustung, made from sloes, in South of France.

Gin, made from barley and juniper, in Holland.

Gin, made from barley and turpentine, in England.

Goldwasser, made from barley and anise seed, in Dantzic.

Kirchwasser, made from cherry berries, in Switzerland.

Lau, made from rice, in Siam.

Maraschino, made from cherry berries, in Zara.

Curacoa, made from oranges, in West Indies.

Plante, made from cactus, in Mexico.

Rakai, made from husks of grapes, in Scio.

Rassolio, compounded in Dantzic.

Seskis kayavodka, made from fruit, in Scio.

Slakavia trava, made from sweet grass, in Kamschatka.

Schowcho, made from rice, in China and Japan.

Rum, made from sugar cane, in West Tuba, made from palm, in Phillipine Islands.

Whiskey, made from molasses and grain, in Europe and America.

Woohah, made from herbs, in Africa.

Yrosti, made from grapes, on the Rhine.

Yung, made from rice, in the East Indies.

This list does not comprise all the spirits distilled by the different countries. A thousand or more come under the head of manufactured or compound.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

Symptoms—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists or by mail, for 50 cts. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. "Only the Scars Remain,"

Says HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who certifies as follows:

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

Mother Urged Me

LOVE'S BLINDNESS.

The Truth of the Adage Exemplified in a Laughable Way.

"Love is blind." The truth of this adage was exemplified last night to the letter. Two young gentlemen with their lady friends were promenading on the Government pier, when the couple which were ahead, being so much taken up with each other, walked right over the wharf into Kennedy's slip. It was a long drop, and when they got down they found themselves in four feet of water. The young lady escaped with a wetting and the loss of her hat. Her companion, a young man well known about town, had to be hoisted up on the wharf. He had no hat on when he reached the top of the wharf, and there is no telling what he lost. Some say he is minus a watch, while others are sure that $35 will cover his loss. The young ladies were sent to their homes in a coach, the young men being able to walk to their domiciles.—St. John, N. B., Sun.

That Tired Feeling

is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for such a condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, carefully prepared from the best ingredients. 25c.

THT AFFAIRS OF THE CITY.

Vancouver Makes a Surprising Request in Regard to Darcy Island Funds.

Ald. Dwyer Comments on Some Work at Beaver Lake—Pauper Burials.

All of the city council except Ald. Vigelius were at the regular meeting last night. The session was a short one, but considerable business was dispatched.

J. H. Gray, chief engineer of the Victoria & Sidney railway, wrote enclosing a conveyance to 9.96 acres of land on the west shore of Elk lake owned by the city and needed by the company and pointing out that the arbitration had fixed the price at $50 per acre. The letter was tabled for future consideration.

J. T. Bethune, secretary of the Liberal association, wrote thanking the mayor and aldermen for the free use of the market hall for the Laurier meeting. Received and filed.

Henry M. Yates, secretary of the board of directors of the Jubilee hospital, called attention to the fact that the hospital was improperly being made pay the expenses of all pauper funerals in cases of death at the hospital.

Ald. Humphrey said he believed it unjust to have the hospital pay the expense of all pauper funerals. If the city sent a poor patient to the hospital and he died the city should bury him. He believed, however, that some distinction should be made and that Victoria should not be called on to pay for a man from the interior or from the other side.

The mayor said he thought the letter was general in its reference.

Ald. Humphrey said the city should certainly not be called upon to bury outsiders.

Ald. Styles moved to refer the matter to the cemetery committee for investigation and report, and it was so decided.

J. Stuart Yates called attention to the absolute want of fire protection at Jubilee hospital, and asked the council to confer with the committee of the month.

Mayor Teague said that he had had several conferences with the chief of the fire department on the subject and a plan of the sites of the Jubilee and city isolation hospitals, showing just how the pipes and hydrants were, was being prepared. He suggested that the matter be deferred for a week, and that idea was on motion decided upon.

A letter from the secretary of the Victoria trades and labor council (which has already appeared in the Times) protesting against the principle of the contract system in doing city work, pointing out that it would be in the interests of the city to do the work on Douglas street sewer by the day, and asking that the letter be referred to the sewerage commissioners for consideration, was read.

On motion of Ald. Munn, seconded by Ald. Ledingham, the letter was received and referred to the sewerage commissioners.

D. Robson, city clerk of New Westminster, wrote inviting the mayor and aldermen to the Westminster fair. The invitation was accepted with thanks.

City Clerk McGuigan, of Vancouver, wrote claiming that the Dominion grant of $1000 to the support of the lepers at Darcy island was not for Victoria alone, but for the whole province, asserting that Vancouver had the right of participating in its use and demanding an accounting of the money so far. He enclosed a vast amount of correspondence between himself and City Clerk Dowler, and himself and the department of agriculture at Ottawa. The earliest of the letters showed clearly that the money was voted to Victoria, but later ones contain some ministerial quibbles to give color to Vancouver's claim.

Ald. Wilson said he believed the claim of Vancouver was most unjust. In 1891 Darcy island cost Victoria $1134.36; in 1892 $994.10 and in 1893 $577.91, making a total of $2706.37. In 1892 Vancouver contributed $96.54 and in 1893 $190.23, and in the latter year the Dominion government gave $1000 and the provincial government $26.20, making the total from all outside sources $1337.-50, so Victoria paid just twice as much as everybody else. He believed that viewed from any standpoint it was the duty of the Dominion government to pay for the entire care of the lepers.

Ald. Dwyer said he believed that the details given by Ald. Wilson should be sent to the Vancouver council and that Vancouver should be notified that it would be expected to provide for all of its own lepers after November 1 if it did not pay its share. He moved to that effect.

Ald. Baker seconded the motion and said he believed Victoria had been treated most unfairly.

Ald. Munn said the policy of the Dominion government was about the stupidest thing imaginable. On the Atlantic seaboard the Dominion government maintained a regular lazaretto, which is fully controlled and supported. Here a couple of cities were called upon to divide up the expense of the station. It was clearly the duty of the government to care for the lepers, but every effort to have it taken over had failed. He believed that a strongly worded resolution covering the matter should be passed and forwarded to Ottawa.

The motion of Ald. Dwyer was then put and carried.

City Engineer Wilmot submitted a report stating that the work of repairing the receiving beds at Beaver lake would cost $500 more than was appropriated and that he had stopped the work.

Ald. Dwyer said that from all he could hear there had been a needless expenditure of money in certain ways. For instance, three men had been engaged at a salary of $4 per day. They had done little more than watch one another, and one of the other men employed on the work had said one of the $4 a day men had done little beyond reading and smoking. One could have done the work of the three.

Ald. Ledingham asked who had directed the work, and Mayor Teague said the city engineer had.

Ald. Harris urged that there be no further delay and that the work be resumed, and said he was sure that the money would be forthcoming in due time.

Ald. Munn said that while it was very seldom that an expenditure exceeded an estimate, it was a practice that should not be countenanced for an instant, for it was wrong in principle.

The mayor said it would have been an absolute impossibility to have estimated the work very closely.

Ald. Wilson said the appropriation had not been exceeded, but when it was all used up a stop was made. The work was all right so far as it went, but more money was needed to finish it.

Ald. Humphrey said they had material and other things on hand and could go on at any time.

The matter was tabled, and Ald. Harris will probably move at the next meeting that the work be completed.

Chief Thomas Deasy presented the following report:

His Worship the Mayor and Fire Wardens:

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to report seven fires during the month of September, with a loss estimated at $2,075.

The Tiger steam fire engine was tested and found defective. The boiler is in such a condition that it would be dangerous to use the steamer again.

The Deluge engine is in fair condition, but was out of service for two days to allow the engineers to replace four defective boiler tubes.

I would respectfully recommend that a new set of boiler tubes for the Deluge engine be ordered at the earliest moment from Messrs. Merriweather & Son, London, England, at a cost not to exceed $225.

The engine house on Yates street is in a very unsafe condition. The ceiling is falling, roof leaking and floors giving way.

The permanent men purchased uniforms at their own expense, and I would respectfully ask for overcoats and gum boots to protect them from the severe drenchings they receive at fires. A small appropriation for this purpose would be appreciated by men who are often called out in the severe wintry nights to save burning buildings.

A new fire escape law was passed at the session of the last Provincial Parliament. It conflicts with the municipal law and appears to be a copy of some statute in force in cities with buildings ten stories in height. Enclosed please find a copy. The statute calls on the chiefs of the fire departments to carry out the provisions therein contained, and I would respectfully ask whether I must carry out the provincial act or the municipal by-law on this subject. The new law affects all buildings over two stories in height, and will surely cause endless trouble and litigation.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
(Sd.) THOMAS DEASY,
Chief Fire Department.

Ald. Dwyer said he believed the provincial act would take precedence over any other law and be enforced. He regarded the act as a good one.

Ald. Munn said the enforcement of the provincial act here in Victoria would raise a general protest. He was rather amused at the attorney-general not guarding against the passage of laws that conflict.

The report was referred to the fire wardens.

Sanitary Officer Conlin reported that in accordance with instructions he had acted in the matter of the complaint of Messrs. Storey and Furnival about the pigs kept on Johnson street by Young Bros. The pigs, he reported, had been removed, but only to the adjoining lot, while the chickens he had himself removed and delivered at the New England bakery.

Ald. Baker said that the "removal" of the pigs served the council right for passing such a silly resolution.

The report was received and filed.

Superintendent Johnson reported that the receipts at the market in September were $105.30. The report was received and filed.

The finance committee presented two reports, the first recommending the appropriation of $4778.52 out of the general revenue, and the second $152 out of the electric light fund. They took the usual course.

Christina Hutchinson and sixteen others presented a petition calling attention to the condition of Harrison street and asking that it be repaired. Referred.

The sewerage committee reported among other matters that the contract for the extension of the sewer from Pembroke street to the North ward school had been awarded to McGregor & Jeeves, the lowest tenderers. Received and adopted.

Ald. Wilson brought up the matter of appointing ten directors to the board of the agricultural society, but it was agreed to lay the matter over, to be taken up at a special meeting this week.

City Clerk Dowler reported that since the last regular meeting the following communications had been received and referred to the committees hereinunder mentioned:

Sewerage—J. Gerhard Tiarks, requesting that the Fort street sewer be extended to the east side of part of lot 55, Victoria city, to make provision for sewering Dr. John Duncan's new residence. John Crowther, desiring that the box drain on Pandora street opposite his residence be extended. M. J. Conlin, sanitary inspector, calling attention to the dangerous nuisance on the corner of Humboldt and Vancouver streets, caused by the drainage of those two streets emptying upon lots where cows are pastured. John Wilson, agent for the Johnson estate, desiring that the trustees of the said estate be allowed to defer making sewer connections with the property of the said estate on Government street until new buildings are erected thereon.

Streets—W. A MOTHER'S WORDS.

"Lactated Food Saved My Baby's Life."

INCOMPARABLE IN QUALITY.

It Saves Babie's Lives.

A mother's statement as to how her baby's life was saved, may induce many mothers to pause and consider the important question: "Am I using the best food for my baby?"

A mother, the wife of a storekeeper in the east end of Montreal, says:

"My baby was never breast-fed; it had to be brought up on prepared foods. When my baby girl was two months old, it was so thin and weak that doctor said it would not live many days. Seeing a notice in one of the daily papers about Lactated Food, I bought a package and tried it. There was new life for baby in the first meal, though small in quantity. After using Lactated Food for ten days, I found that baby was getting brighter and smarter. I continued using the food and now baby is five months old, and is fat and healthy. Your Lactated Food saved my dear baby's life, it is worth its weight in gold."

GLORIES OF JERVIS INLET

Incomparable Scenery of This Magnificent Arm of the Sea—Nature's Beauties.

Jervis Inlet Quartz Mining Co.'s Property—Great Mountain of Ore

A short time ago I had the pleasure of accompanying a party of gentlemen bound for the head waters of Jervis Inlet. The object of the trip was to do development work on claims belonging to the Jervis Inlet Quartz Mining Co., of Victoria, and to determine the value of the claims as a gold property. Among the number composing the party was Charles F. Law, late mining commissioner to the World's fair, and Mr. Selois, an English gentleman of extensive experience as a mining engineer and assayer. The party was provided with a complete assaying outfit, and prepared to test rock from all parts of the property and were competent to give a correct description of the scenery in Jervis inlet. The brush of an artist or the pen of a poet might do it justice, but to fully understand and appreciate its grandeur and beauty one must behold it. The coast line from Vancouver to Nelson island is too well known to require any description. From the entrance to the inlet to its head waters, a distance of fifty miles or more, one is enchanted with the ever changing beauty of the scenic view.

The inlet itself is not wide, but the high mountains on either side make it appear narrower than it is. The depth of the water ranges from fifty to two hundred fathoms, without rock or shoal to endanger the passage of the largest ship afloat from the entrance to its head. On either side there appears an unbroken chain of mountains extending the entire length of the inlet. An occasional small valley of apparently fertile land may be noticed, but massive ruggedness is the predominating feature of the country, the mountains rising to a height in some places of eight thousand feet, their bases reaching to the shore line, here and there timbered with evergreen trees from base to summit; in other places bald rock rises from the snow line to the peaks of eternal snow and ice. Level benches can be discerned at great heights, with vast fields of snow for a covering. Here and there what appears from the distance to resemble threads of silver extending from the summits to the water's edge are seen, but a closer scrutiny discloses beautiful streams fed from the vast fields of ice and perpetual snow thousands of feet above. Some of these glacial streams have a perpendicular fall of over one thousand feet, emptying into the waters of the inlet with a mighty roar that can be heard at a great distance. The magnificence of the scenery combined with the clear mountain air ought to make this section one of the most favored routes for excursion parties.

We arrived at the head waters of the inlet early in the morning, and it being a beautiful day we were not long in becoming comfortably housed on the bay or lagoon which is the head of this beautiful stretch of wter, sheltered from almost every quarter, surrounded by the highest mountains on the shore line. Mt. Albert on the west side is 8500 feet in altitude, capped with ice and snow. This mountain slopes to the head of the inlet, where a large river skirts the base of the mountain for about a quarter of a mile, then branching into two streams of about equal size, one coursing northward, the other about northeast around the eastern side of Mt. Victoria, whose height is about 7500 or 8000 feet. Between this river and the beach, a distance of about three quarters of a mile, is a tract of land as level as a floor containing about 2600 acres of about the finest soil I ever saw and capable of yielding a good living to a number of families. I understand this tract is held by the government as an Indian reserve, although the natives have made no use whatever of it for years past. On the eastern side of this reserve, between the river at the base of Mt. Victoria to the north and a mountain of slate to the south, there is a small, oblong mountain or hill, whose highest point I do not think would exceed 1200 feet. On this mountain are the claims of the Jervis Inlet Co., named the Victoria and Albert. In fact, they embrace nearly the whole mountain. The mountain to the east, as I have already stated, is composed of the slate formation, which strikes across the inlet at that point, and to the east of this slate, and on the south side of the claims, is a large mountain composed partially, if not entirely, of limestone.

Mt. Victoria, to the northward of the claim, I had not the opportunity of examining, but from appearances I believe it to be composed largely of granite. I do not know the geological term for the rock on which the company have their claims, but some of the old miners call it "porphery." The whole mountain on which the company's claims are located is composed of alternate lodes of quartz of different colors, and varying in width from a foot to hundreds of feet. Some of these ledges or chutes are of blue color, while others approach a brownish black, while by far the largest portion consists of what miners call porphery.

At the north end the river runs along the base of the claims, where there is a strip of level land between the foot of the hill and the river, just the place for mills or other works. This strip extends along the river about three hundred yards to the falls, where the water comes from a gorge with a descent of about fifty feet with sufficient force to drive all the machinery on the coast. From the river the mountain rises in terraces or benches, with walls of bare rock ranging from 25 to 120 feet high. Along the faces of these cliffs the prospector by careful examination finds numbers of well defined lodes, all carrying sulphurets, some very rich, chiefly of iron with iron and other metals, such as copper, lead, etc. In some places the rock carries from 8 to 10 per cent. of lead. In fact, the whole mountain appears to be one mass of gold bearing rock, and while there are rich chutes that give assays from $12 to $350 in gold per ton, still the large portion of what may be termed low grade ore. Mr. Selois, after making over forty tests from different parts of the property, gave it as his opinion that the average would be between $7 and $8 to the ton of rock, and from what I have seen I believe the estimate is well within the limit.

In regard to the facilities for cheap mining I believe this propety stands second to none on the Pacific coast. With millions of tons of pay ore in sight, with water power that cannot be surpassed, plenty of timber for building and other purposes within five minutes' walk of the beach; with a beautiful, invigorating, health-giving climate, this place, I believe, at no distant day, will be a busy and prosperous mining camp.

As regards climate at the head of the inlet, I think it is the finest that I have known, and as a summer resort for rheumatic or consumptive complaints it has only to be tried to be appreciated. There is abundance of game, such as bear, elk and mountain sheep; water fowl, such as geese and ducks, are plentiful, and at times the gamey salmon come up to the head of the inlet, and in the north branch of the river trout are said to be plentiful.

FINAL MATCH.

It is probable that the final match in the senior championship series between Victoria and New Westminster will be played on Saturday, October 20th, but in which city of the provice has not yet been decided. The executive of the Westminster club meets to-night, and will consider the matter. Nanaimo is anxious to secure the match and have offered the use of their grounds free of cost. Vancouver is also after the match. The secretary of the Westminster club, in a leter to Secretary Drury, of the Victoria club, asks what inducements Victoria will offer for the match, but it is not likely that they are seriously considering any proposition to play here, although the attendance here would be much larger than in any other city in the province.

PRACTICE THIS EVENING.

A full team practice is to be held this evening at the same place as last evening. Every member of the team is requested to be present at 6.30 sharp, as it is necessary that all should have as much practice as possible for the approaching match for the championship.

SOME HISTORIC WOMEN.

The Story of Heathenism's Beautiful Martyr, Hypatia.

One of the most remarkable women of any age was the daughter of the mathematician and philosopher, Theon, whose name, Hypatia, has been made familiar to many people by Kingsley's famous novel, bearing that title. She was born in Alexandria about the year 350, and at an early age began the study of methematics and philosophy, under her father. Later she went to Athens for the benefit of intercourse with the teachers of that city, and returning, she established a school in Alexandria which was attended by the distinguished youths of that city, over whom her influence is said to have been extraordinary. This was in part due to her great ability and learning, and in part to her remarkable charms of person and manner. At the age of 50 she succeeded her father in the chair of philosophy, and was then at the zenith of fame and beauty. Her life is said to have been one of spotless purity, and her influence was ever on the side of the good and noble. On several occasions she appeared as an advocate in the courts of law and with great success. Her knowledge of affairs seemed to have been as deep as her philosophical researches, and she was for many years the confidential friend and adviser of the prefect of Alexandria. Orestes was a Christian by profession, while Hypatia was not. Cyril, bishop of Alexandria, was jealous of the powers of Orestes, and was scheming to increase his authority to restrain the fanatic zeal of the bishop, whose persecution of the Jews was inconceivably harsh. He drove them from the city by thousands, destroyed their property and subjected them to torture and death. Orestes was able to check this for a time, but at length Cyril contrived to influence the Christian populace against him and his adviser, Hypatia. The result was that the streets of Alexandria ran red with blood on more than one occasion. In one of these tumults, Hypatia, who was passing through the streets in carriage, was siezed by the crowd, and with the sanction of the officers of the church, was stripped naked before the people, who fell upon her armed with oyster shells, and cut her to pieces, the fragments of flesh being afterwards publicly burned. There is some difference of opinion as to the direct responsibility of Cyril for this murder, but the weight of evidence seems to be that it was committed, if not at his instigation, at least with his full approval. This occurred in the year 415.

Hypatia has often been described as a heathen martyr, but she was a sample of the product of heathenism, the Christianity of the day compared very poorly with the system which it displaced. Hypatia, was the head of the Neo-Platonic school of the ancient Occidental schools. It may be described as an amalgamation of Oriental and Occidental thought. At the beginning of the Christian era the Roman world was given over to what we would nowadays call agnosticism. The philosophy of Greece, which had fallen far below the high ideals of Plato, was unsatisfactory to the Roman mind. The teachings of Christianity, as advanced by the illiterate apostles, seemed too crude for the refined and intellectual minds which studied in the school of Athens and Alexandria, but they saw in it what was lacking in the ancient heathenism, and set themselves to work to reform the latter so as to make it conform to the new and higher standard.

The Neo-Platonists were heathens only in the sense that they were not Christians. They were not idolators, and they inculcated the highest purity of life. They believed in a diety, whom they described as absolutely good, incapable of being understood by the mind, who was without beginning, and is the principle and cause of all things. This diety was manifest in three aspects, one of which is the human soul. Thus Plotinus, one of the great teachers of this school, when dying, said: "I struggle to release the divinity that is within me." Here the reader will notice the same line of thought as that expressed in the first chapter of John's gospel, where the apostle, speaking of Christ as one with God, refers to Him as "the light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

What the future of Neo-Platonism would have been if Christianity had not been accepted by the Roman emperors, and been converted into a vast political power, no one can guess. The discriminating student will see that the discord between it and Christianity was more in regard to names than anything else.

After the death of Hypatia this school of philosophy declined in influence, but for more than a hundred years its teachers still had their classes in Alexandria. In the year 533 the Emperor Justinian cosed these schools and banished the teachers to the remotest regions of the Roman empire.

Hypatia may be regarded as the consummation of womanly perfection under ancient heathenism. History at first dealt harshly with her, representing her to be one inspired of Satan to allure by her beauty and talents the Christian majistracy from the true faith; but later her noble qualities of mind gained ascendancy over her traducers, just as her personal graces won the hearts of all who came in contact with her. A woman of marvellous beauty, of talents that made her the leader of men of thought, of wisdom that qualified her to administer justice in the most corrupt and cosmopolitan city that the world has ever seen, of unsullied purity of life, which exactly as every form, and prompted her to sacrifice her life for those with whom she had no other sympathy except that of common humanity—such was Hypatia.
